Small is beautiful—that's often the description Scandinavians give to their favorite holiday destination. The fairytale country of Hans Christian Andersen has a charm all its own, with colorful rolling landscapes, picturesque villages, and some of Europe's most splendid castles. Covering an area of approximately 16,500 square miles with a population of 5.7 million people, Denmark is almost completely surrounded by water—the Baltic Sea to the south, Kattegat to the east, the North Sea to the west, and Skagerak to the north. The highest point, Yding Skovhøj, is only 574 feet above sea level.

Denmark is also known as the land of many greats in design—Bang & Olufsen audio, Paul Henningsen lighting, and Royal Copenhagen porcelain. Music and culture are represented by composers such as Carl Nielsen and Hans Christian Lumbye. Famous authors include Hans Christian Andersen, best remembered for his fairy tales, and Karen Blixen with her famous book Out of Africa. The Danes are also known as humorous and fun-loving people. No wonder it is the homeland of pianist Victor Borge and the world-famous amusement park Tivoli Gardens. Today, many cultural establishments are financially supported by the Carlsberg Foundation, so one could say that the more Carlsberg beer is consumed, the better the museums!
